

BY CRANSTON & NOHMAN,
127 THAMES STREET.

THURSDAY MORNING, FEB. 13, 1851.

The lecture before the Mechanics' Society, this evening, will be delivered by Lieut. ROBERTSON, of the Army. His subject is Civilization. We have never had the pleasure of hearing Lieutenant ROBERTSON speak in public; but we know him intimately and well, and we can assure our readers that his lecture will be an interesting one. He is a man of strong mind and varied learning, possesses an enthusiastic temperament and great sincerity of purpose. We trust that the Hall will be full.

Our readers will bear in mind the philosophical lecture by Professor MACY, to-morrow evening, at Bellevue Hall. We learn that Professor MACY will prove, in a most satisfactory manner, that the Spiritual Rappings are all a humbug; and he will show the audience how they are produced, and yet that the manner cannot be detected, when the "mediums," as they are called, are operating. Go early and secure a seat, so that you can see and hear.

We are indebted to the Hon. John H. Seward, Hon. Albert C. Brown and Hon. John H. Clarke, for valuable Public Documents.

We will publish the communication of "Sarah," if she will call and see first; we have a suggestion to make in regard to it.

A Peep into the Literary Circles of London.—The society of the literary world of London is conducted after this wise: There are certain persons, for the most part authors, editors, or artists, but with the addition of a few who can only pride themselves upon being the patrons of literature and art, who hold occasional assemblies of the notables. Some appoint a certain evening in every week during the season, a general invitation to which is given to the favored; others are monthly; and others, again, at regular intervals. At these gatherings the amusements are conversation only, and the entertainment unostentatious and inexpensive, consisting of tea and coffee, wine and negus handed about in the course of the evening, and sandwiches, cake and wine at eleven o'clock. Suppers are prohibited by common consent, for costliness would speedily put an end to society to be sacrificed to fashion. The company meets usually between eight and nine o'clock, and always parts at midnight. I believe that these are the only social circles in London in which inexpensive, and hence, perhaps, it is that they are the most frequent, the most social and the most agreeable. At these parties there is always an amusing and singular character. The only recognized taste of admission is talent. If a person be remarkable for any talent no matter what his station in life, here he is welcome. The question always asked in the literary circles of London is, he is in other circles. "What is he?" but "Who is he?" Authors, artists, editors, musicians, ecclesiastics, men, actors and singers, male and female, are grouped together indifferently, and peers, baronets, knights, lawyers, doctors, bookellers, printers, provided they possess the qualifications of being authors, artists, musicians, or be renowned as patrons of literature, are on an equal footing, here they meet together in a social equality, but regulated by so much good sense, that it does not lead to familiarity elsewhere. — London Literary Journal.

A despatch from Baltimore, dated 10th inst., says:—George B. Garrison, Esq., Attorney General of the State of Maryland, died at Baltimore, this morning, at five o'clock, after a short illness. James Wilson, Jr., of the firm of Wilson & Son, one of the oldest firms of Baltimore, also expired this morning.

Jenny Lind's reception at New Orleans, on the 7th inst., was a most enthusiastic and brilliant one. She alighted from the boat on a superb carpet, which was laid on the levee for her to walk on.

A bill has been introduced in the New York Senate, providing for the election of U. S. Senator in the place of Mr. Dickinson. The Tribune thinks it is destined to pass.

There was no election of Senator in Massachusetts, yesterday. Several names were put forward, but the election was postponed for two weeks.

STORY OF A MURDER.—The "Yankee Blade" tells the following story of one of our Quaker girls:—

In the "Old Keystone State" they have capacious elights, every thing there being designated after a broad-brimmed Quaker model, somewhat modified, perhaps, by Dutch ideas of taste and comfort. It so happened that a demure little Quakeress, who concealed in her meek blue eyes a world of fun and mischief, had two ardent lovers, upon neither of whom she had consented to bestow her hand and heart. A sleighing party was projected in the village, and the two rivals contrived to secure their seats, one on each side of the coquettish little Quakeress, their object being, no doubt, to prevent the winds of Heaven from visiting her cheek too roughly.

This lady was provided with a most capacious muff, "whereby hangs a tale." Confidential conversation must, of course, have been rather limited under the circumstances, and it occurred to one of the rivals (who by the way, was a firm believer in negation and charming, especially where the little Quaker beauty was concerned) that if he could contrive to put himself in "rapport," or "spiritual" communication with his fair friend, by introducing his hand into her muff, he should have a decided advantage over his rival. As his hand timidly approached the muff that enveloped the delicate digits of the Quakeress, it trembled, as if under the effects of galvanism. There was, at first, some preliminary toying, and scarcely perceptible approach, then an almost indistinguishable pressure, and finally a tremendous squeeze! The first kiss of love, has fixed the heart on a hand of many a poet-lover with rapturous enthusiasm; but that first, warm, thrilling pressure of two hands which have met for the first time in love's embrace, seems to complete the magnetic circle, and to form a telegraphic connection, which transmits from heart to heart, the lightning of love! The perfect beauty of our hero, we shall not attempt to describe; suffice it to say, that his whole soul was glowing in the tips of his fingers, and there holding blissful communion with the spirit of the sweet little Quakeress. But happiness is proverbially brief. Alas! that knowledge should ever bring sorrow. Our hero proved the truth of that oft-quoted line:—

"Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise." The little Quakeress put a sudden extinguisher upon the new born hopes of our hero, by saying while her soft blue eyes were sparkling with fire and mischief, "friends, if you have squeezed each other's hands long enough, I will now trouble you for the use of my muff!" The ludicrous truth at once flashed across the minds of the rivals—they had been carousing each other "pace" for the last half hour! The quicksilver of their hopes fell far below zero. But they had been equally "done" so that was some consolation at least. Right merrily rang the bells, whose music mingled with the joyous peals of laughter, as the party rode home that night. "The spirit never moved" either of the rivals to muddle with the muff of a Quakeress afterwards; indeed they were always most whenever the word was mentioned, and it has been said that they even lost their relish for muffins at breakfast, which they never recovered.

Mrs. PARTINGTON.—Many suppose that the existence of this far-famed matron, is and was mere fable. This is a mistake. There was a real Mrs. Partington, and she owed her fame to the wit of Sir Sidney Smith, who in a speech on the Reform Bill at Taunton, in England, referred to her as follows:—"I do not mean to be disrespectful, but the attempt of the Lord to stop the progress of reforms, reminds me very forcibly of the great storm of Sidmouth, and of the conduct of the excellent Mrs. Partington on that occasion. In the winter of 1821, there set in a great flood upon that town, the tide rose to an incredible height, the waves rushed in upon the houses, and everything was threatened with destruction. In the midst of this sublime and terrible storm, Dame Partington, who lived upon the beach, was seen at the door of her house with mop and patten, trundling her mop and squeezing out the sea water and vigorously pushing away the Atlantic Ocean. The Atlantic was roused. Mrs. Partington's spirit was up, but I need not tell you the contest was unequal. The Atlantic Ocean beat Mrs. Partington. She was excellent at a mop, or a patten, but she should not have meddled with a tempest. Gentlemen, be at your ease—the quiet and steady. You will beat Mrs. Partington."

The contracts of the printing of the 32nd Congress have been opened, and the largest portion awarded to Mr. Rivers. The prices accepted are said to be below those of the present Congress. Mr. Manning of Connecticut was the lowest bidder for the remainder.

The employees of the New York Herald office have formed a military company under the title of the "New York Herald Guard."

SINGING MICE.—Among the phenomena of the day, we have to add one not less surprising than any that has fallen under the notice of Naturalists. A friend has sent to our office a couple of Singing Mice, which, strange to relate, possess such vocal powers as to imitate the lower notes of the young Mock bird, the warble being perfectly distinct. It would appear that the vocal sounds occasionally issue from them, not from a distance, like a species of ventriloquism. An eminent naturalist of this city has seen this phenomenon, and regards it as one of the most extraordinary recorded in Natural History. — Charleston, S. C., News.

A MAN PICKED UP AT SEA.—NARROW ESCAPE.—The Havana correspondent of the New York Tribune, relates the following story of the rescue of a seaman from a watery grave:—

On the morning of the 25th, as the barque Oregon, Thompson, from Frankfort for Havana, was nearing the coast of Cuba, and distant some twenty miles, the attention of the officers of the ship and the watch on deck, was attracted by a singular noise near the ship in the water—not seeming the voice of a human being in distress, but which led to an examination of the surface, as far as the eye could reach, without ascertaining any object floating upon it. The ship passed on its way a half mile or more, when the Captain, impressed with the sentiment that life was at hazard, ordered his ship about. The singular sound was again heard—the boat was lowered, and a life was saved.

James Thompson, a Prussian by birth, after having obtained strength to give utterance to words, reported that he fell overboard from the ship Ocean Star, bound from New Orleans to Boston, at six o'clock the previous evening; that he fell through the head, and the vessel passed over him, and he pronounced it was not observed on board in time to render him assistance. He remained six hours without anything to aid in sustaining himself, as he thinks; but some three hours before he was picked up through the providence of Captain Thompson, he struck a floating board of some three feet in length and one foot in width, which buoyed him up, and enabled him to rest.

CENSUS RETURNS.—We learn from the Republic, that complete returns have been received at the Census office from eight of the States, to wit: Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Maryland, Kentucky, Wisconsin, and from the Territory of Minnesota; and that partial returns have been received from all the rest of the States and Territories, except California and Oregon.

AN ACTRESS TO THE LAST.—The Revue des Theatres says:—"Some days before her death, which took place lately, Mile. Eliza Gergeot, ex-directress of the Theatre Francaise at London, was conversing with some friends, when some one knocked at her door, and her femme-de-chambre whispered some words in her ear: 'It is my marchande de modes come to try me on a new dress,' said the actress. 'Will you come to see it?' She then led the way to her dressing room, and her friends, who followed her, were surprised, and pained to see that the new gown was a coffin. The coffin was of rosewood, lined with white satin, and was placed against the wall. She entered it to try it. 'Yes,' she said, smiling, 'it fits well, and I am pleased with it.'

Mr. George Thompson, belonging to Massachusetts, in traveling through one of the Southern States, lately, had a very narrow escape from lynching. He had hard work to persuade the Southerners that he was not the abolition lecturer, Thompson.

"BEWARE OF THE VIDDERS."—It is said that a dashing widow recently entangled a rich old gentleman of this city, whom she induced to part with real estate to the amount of $80,000, which sums she converted into bills of credit and dashed off to Europe on a little holiday excursion. "O, these inveigling vidders!" — N. Y. Mirror.

Henry Clay and the Boatmen.—The other day three barrels of flour were shipped from this city on the pike No. 6 to the Hon. Henry Clay. In filling up the bill of lading, the clerk inserted in the blank space left for the price of the freight these words: "For the love of the man." As our millers have offered to supply Mr. Clay with flour free of cost and as the steamboats refuse to make any charge for freight, the "Sage of Ashland" need incur very little expense for bread for the remainder of his life. These little matters indicate very significantly the profound hold which he has upon the respect and affections of the people. — St. Louis Intelligencer.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

SENATE.
The following acts from the House were read and passed to a second reading and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary:
Act in amendment of an act relative to the deaf and dumb.
Act in amendment of an act to prevent hawk and peddling.
Act in amendment of an act entitled an act providing for the relief and employment of the poor.

HOUSE.
The Chair appointed R. G. Hazard, Sheldon and Davis, the Special Committee on the petition presented yesterday in relation to the fugitive slave bill. The House took up the School Bill, and proceeded to consider it by sections. Mr. Anthony, of Newport, after the several amendments of the committee had been adopted, moved to reconsider the vote amending the first section, providing that the School Commissioner shall not be a member of either House of the General Assembly.

A long debate took place on the motion to reconsider, which was decided in the negative, by the following vote: Ayes, 14, Noes, 37.

The vote was then taken on the passage of the bill as amended, and it was passed. Adjourned.

AFTERNOON.
House.—Petition of Levi C. Dexter and wife for leave to adopt a child was passed.

Act to prohibit pistol galleries in the compact portion of the town of Newport, was amended.

Joint resolution appointing John Carter Brown, Alexander Duncan and John O. Choules, delegates to the World's Fair, was offered by Mr. Cranston, and laid on the table by consent.

Petitions were received and referred. Report of Commissioners of Mechanics and Manufacturers Bank, was read and sent to the Senate.

The House adjourned.
